SATURDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 7, 18[illegible]

THE SUNDAY OREGONIAN.

To-morrow's edition of THE SUNDAY OREGONIAN will be a particularly interesting paper, and will be replete with choice sketches, able literary articles and news bits of interesting reading. Among the principal attractions is a charming story written expressly for this paper, by Gertie Parsons Lathrop, entitled "Captain Billy." "Legislative Recollections," by Mr. J. B. Merry; "Dr. Whitman," by Hon. Elwood Evans; by Mr. M. Pelts; Society doings; Fraternal events; Current Literature; Topics for the Country Sect; Lincoln at Richmond, and others, complete the mention. A full and complete resume of Local, Telegraphic and Miscellaneous matter will also be presented to its numerous readers.

DEDUCTION OF DEBTS.

It is urged that "the scheme of not allowing any deductions for indebtedness would result in a great deal of double assessment and consequent double taxation, and this double taxation would almost uniformly fall upon those who are least able to bear up under such double burdens. It would fall upon the poor and those of moderate means who are often compelled to incur indebtedness or sacrifice what little property they have to the rapacity of a heartless creditor." Also, that "the only real cause of complaint under our present system lies in the fact of undervaluation. But the money-lender must consent to have all his property assessed, and the land owner must consent that his land shall be assessed at its full value. We must all come to this common ground before the subject of taxation can be satisfactorily adjusted."

But the notion that we shall "all come upon this common ground" is utopian. It has been sufficiently proven by experience that real estate in Oregon, whether farm lands or city lots, never will be assessed at its full value. The owners will not permit it. They are sufficiently numerous and powerful to elect assessors and other officials who deal with the subject, and to control them after they are elected. Except money and credits, no property is assessed at its full value, or one-half of its full value, nor is likely to be. It is this fact that opens a wide door to frauds through deductions of indebtedness. A man may own real estate in Portland well worth $50,000, and yet escape all taxation because he owes or pretends to owe ten or fifteen thousand. A man may own in Linn county one thousand acres of land worth $30,000, and yet by being in debt or pretending to be in debt a few thousand, have nothing to pay. In Portland and all over the state there are innumerable instances of this sort. For many years great numbers of the wealthiest property owners of the state have managed through manipulation of indebtedness nearly or quite to escape taxation. And it will go on so just as long as deductions are allowed.

It is an error, therefore, to assume that if deductions were disallowed the "burden" would fall chiefly "upon the poor and those of moderate means." The greater part of these frauds are practised by rich or well-to-do people, who habitually manipulate indebtedness as a means of shirking taxes. Nor is it true that double taxation would to any extent be the result of refusing to allow deduction of debts. Property will never be assessed, upon an average, at one-half its value; so if no deduction for debts be permitted, double taxation will still be practically impossible.

Moreover, there is no warrant in the constitution for deduction of indebtedness, and it was not allowed in Oregon till many years after the constitution was adopted. It was put into the laws as the work of demagogues, and like all work of the kind it has wrought nothing but mischief. It operates to defeat the equal taxation that the constitution requires; it exempts from taxation fully one-half the property of the state; it offers and pays a steady premium on rascality; it takes the burden of taxation from property where the constitution has placed it, and stands as an insuperable obstacle in the way of every effort to make all property bear equal burdens. So long as it is allowed, all efforts to secure equality of taxation will be futile. Millions of property are robbed out every year by deduction of debts amounting to but a small percentage of the value of the property, and the debts are often fictitious, or made on purpose to defraud the tax roll. Shall this scheme of irregularity and fraud continue forever?

GENERAL GORDON'S FATE.

There seems little question of the death of General Gordon at the hands of the Arabs now in possession of Khartoum. It is the prevailing opinion among army officers in London that he was murdered by the mutineers whose treachery permitted the capture of the city he was defending. General Charles George Gordon was born in 1833, and entered the royal engineers at the age of 19 as a second lieutenant. He served in the Crimean war, and was wounded at the siege of Sebastopol. After the close of the war he aided in the survey and settlement of the Russo-Turkish frontier in Asia. He went with the English expedition to China against Peking, and remained in that country in the military service of the emperor after the objects of the expedition were accomplished. In 1863 he was made commander of the Chinese army, and to him is due most of the credit of suppressing the Taiping rebellion, which had for years devastated some of the most populous and fertile districts in China. It was here that he acquired his soubriquet of "Chinese" Gordon. This work occupied two years, and soon after its conclusion he was made British consul for the Danube delta, a position he held nearly ten years, resigning in 1871 to take control of the force continuing the work of Sir Samuel W. Baker in Egypt, under the instruction of the khedive, Ismail Pasha. Here he gained much knowledge of the habits of the people among whom he was employed, and when the present trouble with the southern tribes of upper Egypt began, he believed himself competent to settle all difficulties by peaceable means. To this end he secured the mild support and approval of the English government, and last summer started for Khartoum. Since his arrival at that city but little has been positively known of his doings until within the past month. It is evident that his faith in the human nature of Arabs has betrayed him, and he has fallen a victim to a confidence in Christian methods of dealing with fanatical Moslems.

In many respects General Gordon was a remarkable man. He was an earnest believer in the Christian religion and took pride in the fact, yet his military education and qualifications in no wise suffered thereby, and he was generally recognized as an able commander. His death, if so it proves, will be learned of with sorrow by all who have watched his career during the recent troubles in Egypt. His name will be added to the long roll of bright ones already inscribed on the mortuary list, of the present useless and farcical campaign, as sacrifices to the caprice and inefficiency of the present English government.

The legislature of Wisconsin has adopted a graded license bill. It provides a $500 saloon license for cities or villages of 10,000 population or over; a $350 license in places having 30,000 and not more than 10,000 population; a license of $200 for all other cities and villages; and a license of $100 for any saloon in the country three miles or more distant from city or village. These provisions were adopted to remove the objections of country members against a uniform tax of $500 to be exacted in city and village and country alike.

It is now stated that Ollivier Pain, the celebrated French communist, is in command of the Arabs at Metemmeh, and has a number of hundred spirits with him who are opposed to the present order of things, and consider England as the embodiment of all they dislike.

A BREEZE FROM THE SOUTH.

The southern man who tells the truth about the political tyranny, the fraud and terrorism, that prevail in the states of the confederacy is hounded by the whole confederate press with a peculiar malignity. He is pronounced a liar, a renegade, a recreant son of the south—his assailants not perceiving that the fury of their own denunciation goes far to establish what the hated man has told concerning the injustice, fraud, intolerance and tyranny of the political methods of the southern states. It is still just as it was in the old days of slavery. The man who tells the truth—particularly if he be a southern man—is pursued with terrible vituperation. The most gifted southern writer of the day, George W. Cable, is realizing this. The southern press is still denouncing him with extreme bitterness, because of his article in a late number of the Century magazine on "The Freedmen's Case in Equity." He has told about the south what its bulldozers cannot bear to have known. Yet it is plain that if what he has said were not true it would not hurt them at all, and they would never notice it.

Mr. Cable is a well known native of New Orleans, is a descendant of a long line of slaveholders, and was a confederate soldier. He has spent all his life in the south. Having achieved high reputation as a graceful writer, a skillful portrayer of character, and a conservative and deep thinker, he wrote some two months ago the result of his careful thought on the relations of the white and negro races of the southern states. The result is that the south, through its organs of public opinion, denounces and disowns him, and moreover is so hurt by the truth he has told that it has kept up for weeks and still keeps up its fire upon him. Nothing since "Uncle Tom's Cabin," or Helper's "Impending Crisis," has so stirred southern anger and rage.

"He denounces and defames the people of the entire south," and in all the land where he was born there is not one responsive echo, not one voice to approve and applaud," shrieks the New Orleans Times. "He has no sympathy with the south," exclaims the Atlanta Constitution, "and his inclinations, his opinions, his tastes, all lead him back to the New England civilization as to his inheritance." That probably is because he has sentiments of justice, hates wrong and violence, and does not regard the southern bulldozer and ballot box stuffer as the highest type of man.

If there is no sympathy between the south and Mr. Cable, so much the worse for the south. There could hardly be a more sweeping condemnation of that section than is implied in the assertions of its own organs that it has no partnership in so careful a student of human nature, so close an observer of men and events, so pure a man and so eminent a writer, as George W. Cable. If the south can repatriate its most worthy production in the literary line and hand over the credit of him to New England, the latter section should be proud and happy to receive the honor, and it might point a moral, moreover, by citing the case of the Indian who threw away a pearl richer than all his tribe.

STATE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

Church and state are now to be separated in the management of the state agricultural college at Corvallis. The brethren of the M. E. church, South, who have been carrying on the institution in connection with Corvallis college, have resolved to hand it back to the state, and a bill has been presented by Senator Cauthorn of Benton for "an act to confirm the location of the college at Corvallis, and to provide for the maintenance and government thereof." But the permanent location of the college at that place is to be conditioned on the erection by the citizens of Benton county, on or before January, 1887, of brick buildings for the accommodation of the college, to cost not less than twenty-five thousand dollars. The bill provides, further, for the appointment of a board of regents, in whom shall be vested the government of the college, which board shall consist of thirteen members, of whom the three members of the state board of education and the master of the state grange shall be ex-officio members, while the other nine (not more than five of whom shall be members of the same political party) shall be appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the senate. Each senatorial and representative district in the state is to be entitled to gratuitous instruction for as many pupils as the said district now has senators and representatives in the legislative assembly, and one-third of these pupils may be females. The funds arising from the sale of all lands granted to the state under special acts of congress to provide colleges for the benefit of agriculture and the mechanic arts are to be devoted to the maintenance of the institution.

THE SCHOOL BOOK QUESTION.

The fine hand of the school book agent is again visible in a bill to reopen the question of selection of school books. Selection has just been made under the present law, for the term of four years; yet a bill has been introduced in the house to undo it all, to take the power of selection out of the hands of the county superintendents and to give it to the chairmen of the board of school directors of the several school districts of the state. The votes of the districts are to be trumpeted to the superintendent of public instruction, and canvassed by him. There are now over twelve hundred school districts in the state, and the number is rapidly increasing; so it will be seen that this plan, if adopted, will set up a very cumbersome machinery. The primary object of it would appear to be simply to give certain school book publishers a new opportunity to introduce their manufactures into Oregon. The bill ought to be rejected. Selection of books for the schools has just been made and proclaimed. All the books are admitted to be fairly good and satisfactory, and there is no excuse for re-opening the question. Lest it may be supposed that a member from some district ruled by monopoly has introduced this bill, it may be well to say that the author of it is Mr. Veatch, the great anti-monopolist and grainger from Lane county.

Rejection of the Nicaraguan treaty was announced by the New York Herald as "a very serious piece of news," and it said: "That the treaty with Nicaragua for a canal should be rejected by the senate is a public misfortune and a disgrace and humiliation. That it should be defeated by the votes of the great body of democratic senators is a matter which very gravely concerns the democratic party, which is thus put into a position so false, so contrary to what we believe to be the desire of the great mass of the people of the United States, so hostile to our security and our honorable future, that at the very outset of its career it invites the strongest public condemnation." The Herald was among the strongest supporters of the democratic party in the late presidential campaign.

The voting for senator proceeds very slowly and with little warmth or excitement. The legislature contains fifty-two republican members, but Mr. Warren of Yamhill, has been absent from his seat, on account of severe sickness, during nearly the whole session thus far, and we believe has been able to be present so as to cast his vote only once; hence there are but fifty-one republicans in the joint convention. Of these Hirsch yesterday received twenty-six. It is the first time this session that any one has received a clear majority of all the republicans voting. What the incident may signify, as to the final result, no one, probably can say with certainty. It may fairly be supposed, however, that the incident will have weight, though it may not be decisive.

The most striking commentary on the extravagance of official life in America is the declaration of Senator Bayard that he is too poor to accept a position in Mr. Cleveland's cabinet. The salary is $8000 per annum, and Mr. Bayard is known to be worth a quarter of a million dollars. Where is the "simplicity" that a democratic administration was going to introduce?

The danger that lies in the construction of high buildings in large cities has been shown several times in New York city at fires, and an example was again furnished by the disastrous conflagration of yesterday morning. The inability to cope with fire in such massive structures should have a tendency, and doubtless will, to cause owners to modify their plans plans hereafter, so that where great flight is desired, ease of access may also be furnished in case of fire. The loss of several millions in a single fire is too much, even in a city where valuable stocks are necessarily crowded into small compass as in New York.

Never in his life had Mr Gladstone so much need of the full use of all his faculties as now. The "grand old man" has reached a point when the labors of a lifetime will prove "dead sea fruit" to his lips unless he has the courage to drift with the tide or stem it boldly. The blood of the English people has been aroused by the news from Egypt, and no such dilatory measures as have characterized the administration during the past year will be listened to. Either upper Egypt must be abandoned at once or the forces of England be so augmented that El Mahdi and his Arabs may be subjected to permanent defeat or utter destruction. Half-way measures will be of no avail, and the sentiment of England seems to be that General Gordon's death must be avenged. The action of the war office in ordering troops and supplies for Egypt seems to indicate that no abandonment will be made, and for the sake of the liberal administration and the name of its leader it is to be hoped the forces sent may be of sufficient strength to make a decisive settlement of the entire Egyptian problem.

An extremely foolish and improper bill is senate bill number 58, introduced by Mr. Siglin of Coos. It purports to be a bill for "an act to exempt homesteads from attachment and judicial sales;" and in this direction it goes to a length hitherto unheard of. We quote from the bill: "Such homestead shall not exceed $2000 in value nor exceed 160 acres in extent, if not located in a town or city laid off into blocks and lots; if located in any such town or city, then it shall not exceed one block; but in no instance shall such homestead be less than forty acres nor one lot, regardless of value." This bill, if it becomes a law, will introduce swindling as one of the leading industries of the state. Very few persons can be compelled to pay any debt. Through inadvertence on the part of many senators the bill slipped through the senate, but there is small probability that it will be allowed to pass the house.

The London Standard sees in the shooting of Roesa a warning for Parnell, and states that he may yet find his Nemesis. If the "Nemesis" business is to be followed up in such manner as the Standard predicts, it will be only a question of time when both England and Ireland will be in the condition of the celebrated Kilkenny cats. It is unfortunate, too, that the Standard's plan is susceptible of reverse action, and science having enabled any man to act as a "Nemesis" with ease and facility now-a-days, it may not be the part of wisdom to set a precedent.

Many persons who have friends or relatives on the missing steamer San Pablo will heave a sigh of relief at the news we publish this morning of the steamer's safe arrival at Yokohama.

"REJECTED BY THE CONFEDERACY."

OLYMPIA, Feb. 4.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN.

The above caption, in THE OREGONIAN of the 2d instant, in relat on to an article on the rejection of the "Nicaraguan treaty," is, alas, but too true. The "solid south" will ever be the "southern confederacy." No amount of fair dealing, no act of charity will ever cause love for the Union to cross "Mason and Dixon line." On the contrary, every opportunity will be embraced to show love for the "lost cause" and its representatives.

Nothing but the knowledge of weakness prevents a renewal of the declaration of secession. Every effort to exalt the democratic party is an effort to revive the prime pies involved in the lost cause. The south and southern democracy will not advance in less they advance to subdue the spirit of nation ility.

The dough-faces, mudsills and copperheads of the north look to the south simply for the power it gives them in politics, and the confederacy is democratic and looks to the north only with the intent and purpose to dominate and control and give new life and vigor to its heroes and its dogmas.

The south is to-day anything but American. The heart of the confederacy and of its leaders still pines for its first love—slavery, and English money.

English influence and the southern confederacy, still having its representative at St. James, defeated one of the grandest of American schemes of the century. Why is England so anxious about the success of the southern democracy? Because in them, with northern dough-faces, she has pliant tools and active agents to oppose the spread of American commerce and progress.

Is it not England's interest in the West Indies and South America that opposes the Nicaragua canal? England is looking forward to the control and ownership of the western archipelago. She is daily strengthening and widening her position and influence from the Bermudas. She is playing the same devil-fish game from Honduras, and this is why she opposes American progress. And she knows that the southern confederacy is her friend. Given us the Nicaragua canal and English influence will surely and steadily depart from this continent.

We are much mistaken if the next presidential contest is not fought out on this line, namely: Shall Americans, or England and the solid south govern this country? When this is determined, we shall have what the best interests of our country call for—the Nicaragua canal, and no[illegible]

The narrow and impoverished mind of the south belongs to England, and while it is controlled will ever be a cancer in the stomach of the nation.

English money, and English influence with the confederacy, has kept alive the curse of disunion and discord in the south. She fed them during the rebellion and encouraged their treason; and now, shylock-like, she will have her pound of flesh. She guarded their privateers and gave succor to their representatives and wanin[illegible] tunes, and the confederacy must pay the debt.

There can be no strictly American policy as long as the solid south governs the country, and England knows this but too well. Already her hand is felt in the direction of our affairs, and the sooner Americans realize this fact the longer will America be free.

OLYMPIC.

OLYMPIA ITEMS.

OLYMPIA, Feb. 5, 1885.

The annual meeting of the trustees of Tacoma Lodge Library Association of this city was held on Wednesday evening and the following officers elected for the ensuing year: W. H. Roberts, president; Theo L. Brown, vice president; R. W. Davis, secretary; Henry Sabin, treasurer.

The ladies of St. John's Episcopal Guild are soliciting subscriptions for the building of a new church, as the present building is totally unfit for public worship. A subscription list has also been started for the purchase of a pipe organ to be placed in the new building. If this is only had as many outside friends as Tacoma, the chances are that both church and organ would soon be provided.

This city has been the scene of two deaths for as many days this week, and both parties being well known here, naturally a feeling of sadness pervades the community. On Tuesday last Miss Blanche, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Aaron Hartsock, of East Olympia, passed away after a very short illness, the cause pneumonia being consumption. The young lady was only aged about 15 years, and was beloved by a large circle of relatives and friends, who deeply regret her early death. On Wednesday evening Mr. Thornton F. McElroy, a well known citizen of this place, was suddenly taken ill after retiring, and in a few minutes breathed his last. Mr. McElroy was an old Mason, and his funeral tomorrow will be under the auspices of that order. A few days ago the aged wife of Mr. Canby, of Tumwater, also departed this life, and was interred on Wednesday.

CRIMINAL CALENDAR.

TWO MEN HANGED.

ESTELVILLE, Va., Feb. 6.—Wayne Powers and George Bilson were hanged here to-day for the murder of A. M. Gibson, April last. Both addressed the crowd, acknowledging the crime and exonerating Jonah Powers, convicted of the same offense. The parting between Wayne Powers and his brother Jonah, reprieved by the governor, was very affecting. Wayne Powers, in a pamphlet, confessed that he attempted to murder his own brother and many others. He ascribed all his woes to whisky, cards and pistols. Three thousand persons were present. The execution was private, but a stand outside had been erected, from which the condemned spoke. They detailed the killing and burning of the body of their victim, which was horrible to listen to. The killing was done for $12 and a suit of clothes.

An exchange says Burnham's hats. If she don't she ought to discharge her dressmaker.—Minneapolis Tribune.

ALBANY NOTES.

ALBANY, Feb. 6.

Mrs. Bridge will lecture on temperance at the court house, next Sunday evening.

Mr. Walter Terrill, bookkeeper for Mr. S. E. Young, is visiting friends in San Francisco.

Mrs. James Failing and children of your city, are visiting here at the home of her father, Mr. John Conner.

Mrs. Al. Church of Portland, is visiting in the city at the home of her parents, Mr and Mrs. Joseph Webber.

One hundred and fifty-five thousand pounds of dried fruit have been received by the Albany merchants so far this season.

L. Morris was awarded the contract for keeping the county poor for the ensuing year, at the rate of $2 34 per week each.

Rev. F. A. Moses, ex-county superintendent of public instruction, has been called to Jacksonville, where he will take charge of the circuit at that place.

Rev. J. H. Floyd of the Christian church, this city, has removed with his family to New Zealand, where he has accepted a pastorship and will locate permanently.

At the residence of the bridegroom's mother, in this city last evening, Mr. Joseph Tyler was united in marriage to Miss Belle Cannon, Rev. S. G. Irvin, officiating.

A revival meeting has been in progress at the Evangelical church for the past three weeks and still continues. There has been twenty conversions and seventeen accessions to the church.

Richard Tristoe thought to run the city on his own account the other evening and wound up by striking one of our citizens in the face. He was immediately arrested, and being examined before the recorder, was fined $10 and costs; in default of payment he went to jail for five days. Upon being released he was again arrested and arraigned before Justice Humphrey, who fined him $25 and costs, which he paid.

LITTLE DAMAGE TO FRUIT TREES.

HOOD RIVER, OR., Feb. 3.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

In your daily issue of January 30 is a paragraph stating the damage by the recent snowstorm to fences and fruit trees. The damage is not so bad as represented. Yearlings and two-year-olds suffered the most. The undersigned landed at the above place late last fall from Iowa, hoping to get rid of cold and snow, and got into the deepest snow I ever saw. Then to have it reported and published in the leading newspaper in the state that I lost 400 fruit trees, when in reality I have not 300, and they are not damaged but very little, is a little too much for a Yankee to let stand. Nevertheless, the damage to fruit is bad enough, but the older trees are all right and promise a large yield the coming season. I am well pleased with this part of Oregon, especially this valley, which I believe has a grand future, possessing good water, good timber, and, best of all, good citizens. It is supposed by many that this over production of snow is caused by free trade. However, be that as it may, it is melting very fast and has got down to about a foot in depth and still settling.

A HARD FIGHT WITH SOFT GLOVES.

LOUISVILLE, Feb. 6.—A fight with soft gloves, between Mike Cleary of New York and Captain James Dalton of Chicago, was witnessed by a large crowd to-night. Chief of Police Whallen was on hand, to see that the fight was conducted properly. Cleary was in splendid condition. Dalton bore marks of his recent fight with Burke at Chicago. Four rounds, marquis of Queensbury rules, gate receipts to the victor, was the agreement. After sparring two minutes and forty-eight seconds Cleary succeeded in landing a terrific right-hander under Dalton's ear. Though struck with soft gloves, the blood spurted from Dalton's nose and he was knocked senseless and out of time. He recovered in about half an hour. The fight was given to Cleary.

BRIEF MENTION.

Young man's meeting at Y. M. C. A. to-night

There will be dancing as well as skating at the pavilion rink to-night.

During the month of January 12,678 cases of salmon went east over the Northern Pacific railroad.

Martha Washington Circle No. 1 Daughters of Liberty, will give a regular social to-night at their hall, corner First and Taylor.

A death watch has been placed over J. W. Murray, who, unless his sentence is commuted by Governor Moody, will be hanged on Friday next.

The Astorian of the 6th inst. says: "The Yaquina Murder. December 18, came to hand last evening. The Christmas number will show up in six weeks or so."

The funeral of Alice Mary Rose, eldest daughter of Walter and Mary O'Shea, took place yesterday. The services were held at St. Mary's cathedral and were largely attended.

The removal of the old frame building formerly occupied as a saloon on First street between Taylor and Salmon, was finished yesterday. It will be replaced by a brick building.

A little child of James Turpin, Clark county W. T., while playing in the kitchen a few days since, during the absence of its mother, fell backward into a vessel of hot water and was so badly scalded that it died the next day.

The last meeting of the General Ministerial Association, held January 26, was, though only fairly attended, a very profitable and pleasant occasion. The next meeting takes place Monday, February 19, at ten o'clock (10:30 A. M.) and place, F. M. E. A. chapel, corner First and Salmon streets. Outlines will be presented by appointed members and some important measures, now in the hands of the committees, discussed.
